7 REASONS TO GO TO THE NEW YORK AUTO SHOW BY SUBWAY

New York, NY – (January 9, 2016): When traveling to the world’s greatest Auto Show, it’s good to have options. Within New York City, public transportation is always a quick and affordable way to go—and the new 7 Subway line extension, across the street from the Convention Center at 34th Street and 11th Avenue, makes the trip easier than ever.

So, if you’re planning to visit the Auto Show (March 25 – April 3), consider taking the 7 Subway line. Here’s 7 good reasons why:

1. Like the Show cars... It still has that “new car” smell.
2. It’s just one stop from Times Square (the Javits stop is called Hudson Yards).
3. It brings you right to the front doors.
4. It’s fast... so you won’t be furious.
5. It costs just $2.75 (free if you have a weekly or monthly travel card!)
6. Connects to LIRR, Metro North and NJ Transit to the Show.
7. Rain or shine, no surge pricing. Guaranteed!

Other options: If you’re coming by car or truck, virtually all roads lead to the Javits Center. Plus, there’s off-site parking within walking distance of the Show, but it fills up fast. And if you’re looking to burn some calories while blazing a trail to our front door, take advantage of Citi Bike, New York’s new bike sharing system. The NY Waterway is also a convenient and quick way to get to the Javits Center from across the Hudson River, and only one block from the Javits Center.

No matter what mode of transportation you use, we think you’ll agree that getting to the New York Auto Show has never been easier. # # #
